Dear Tim,

Re: Approach to alleged breaches of rule 37.2 of the Gas (Downstream Reconciliation) Rules 2008

Industry is going through a process of interpreting the GTAC. This requires a plain and ordinary reading of the GTAC in the first instance.

Some of the assumptions made in the paper are predicated on an interpretation of the GTAC that may not be correct. We have raised various interpretation issues with First Gas so that they may be resolved. However, until they are, Greymouth Gas considers that this small work-stream should be deferred.

GIC is asked to advise its position.

Yours sincerely
