Gas Information Exchange Protocols (GIEPs)

Consultation on GIEPs underway

We've consulted industry on updates to existing Gas Information Exchange Protocols (GIEPs) and the introduction of new protocols. GIEPs are industry-developed, non-regulated standards that support the consistent exchange of gas market information.

The final protocols will be published on our website under Gas Information Exchange Protocols following an online session in August with participants to discuss the go-live approach.

New Gas Market Commentary

The gas market commentary is a summary of publicly available information affecting the gas industry and wider energy sector.

This commentary does not offer opinion but is grounded in what we are seeing in the information available to us. This edition covers developments from April to June 2026, with future editions intended to be published quarterly alongside the Quarterly Report.

You can find the Gas Market Commentary on our website under the Research and Analysis section.

Consultation Calendar

The Consultation Calendar provides information on the planned industry consultations required to deliver our work programme.

We have updated the calendar for the next quarter on our website.
